DELCASSE STANDS IN WAY.

Retention of French Minister Means Much for Peace.

Ilis Retirement Would Have Been a Diplomatic Victory for Berlin-He Has a Free Hand Now-German Emperor Apparently Considers Exhaustion of Russia as His Opportunity to Stir Up Trouble, Especially Between England and France-British Sentiment Strong Against Kalser's Aggression -Peace of Europe Rests With War Lord.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN. LONDON, April 22.-Two or three times within a dozen years Europe has been on the verge of a great war and has been unaware of the imminent danger until the crisis has passed. There was such a moment when Lord Rosebery delivered an ultimatum to France in the Siamese dispute. There was another such moment in the Fashoda incident. Yesterday a similar peril menaced European peace, and to-day the crisis is still unsolved, although diplomacy takes heart again from the news that M. Delcassé, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, has withdrawn his resignation.

Some idea of the nature and gravity of the crisis may be gained from a brief extract from a letter to THE SUN'S London correspondent from a person holding a high diplomatic position on the Continent. He

"You know that I am rarely pessimistic; to-day I must confeas that I am. When people will not negotiate and say, nevertheless, that they are dissatisfied, it looks as if they meant mischief. If Rojestvensky is sent to the bottom, God knows what may happen."

These words may be cryptic to those who have not followed closely the recent developments of European politics. Let it be remembered that Germany has quietly essouraged Russia to pursue the war toward the point of partial exhaustion. The loss of Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet would render her practically impotent so far as any new enemy is concerned.

What is more obvious than the opportunity thus created for the Kaiser to fish in troubled waters? What could be plainer from his recent action than his intention to take the against one country as the other. It is his spiteful reply to the Anglo-French entents. which he resents . ... d hopes to destroy.

M. Delcassó and Lord Lansdowne, the French and British Ministers of Foreign Affairs respectively, understood the maneuver from the first. The former desired to ignore it as a bluff, thus putting upon Germany the onus of any fresh aggression. and wished to propitiate her by nego-

M. Delcassé yielded to the extent of assuring Germany that he was willing to give the fullest explanation of the French policy and intentions. Germany replied with a disastrous effects. bitter newspaper campaign against France and England and the suggestion of the appointment of an international commission in reference to Morocco which would ignore the French understanding in regard to that country.

This would have been equivalent to canceling this agreement, and M. Delcassé would not consent to abandon the French position. The support of his colleagues was so lukewarm that the Foreign Minister determined to resign.

It was a weak and dangerous action on the part of the greatest of European diplomatists, except so far as it is justified by results. Had he retired, Germany would have had a signal diplomatic victory and it would have led to far reaching consequences in European history. It was indeed the thing most hoped for among the effects of the Berlin machinations. M. Delcassé, however, retains his post with a free hand. This he demanded as an absolute condition of the retention of his portfolio, and it is a good thing for France, as for the rest of the world, that full authority has been granted him in foreign affairs. His retirement at this critical moment would have been an irreparable blow to the cause of peace. The world scarcely appreciates its indebtedness to this man for his great services for the past seven years. He has done for France almost as valuable work as John Hay has for the United States. More than once both men have averted complications in the present war which would almost inevitably have caused it to spread into a general conflict. He has been a true captain of peace in Europe just as Secretary Hay has been in America and

King Edward in Great Britain. These three men, indeed, form a peace riumvirate which may yet carry the world safely through the grave crisis now pend-

DEWET'S FINE OLD SHERRY WINE. An Excellent Appetter, aids digestion.
H. T. Dewey & Sons Oo., 188 Fulton St., New York. ing. To have broken this triumvirate, as a few hours ago seemed probable, would have been one of the greatest calamities that could have befallen diplomacy.

The Kaiser's protestations of his allegiance to peace are now profoundly distrusted throughout Europe. It is he alone 31 Trade Associations and 32 Unions in who is feared throughout the diplomatic world. The problems which may arise between Russia and Japan, either as to prolonged war or early peace negotiations. are not regarded as dangerous except as Emperor William may make them so.

It is easily within M. Deleasse's power to dissipate the neutrality dispute over Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet if he gets a free hand. In fact, he has already done so, as the latest dispatches from St. Petersburg and Saigon indicate. He is a true friend of Russia, but he finds nothing inconsistent in being also a true friend of Great Britain and the United States.

British sentiment continues even more strongly opposed to the Kaiser's aggression than the French. There is no doubt that France greatly dreads a conflict with Germany at the present moment, and she is unaware to what extent she could rely upon British assistance in such an emergency. Even so conservative a journal as the Spectator goes so far to-day as to say:

"We can assure the German fire eaters that we shall not fail to do all we agree to do in maintaining the Anglo-French agreement and that France, if she were wantonly attacked by Germany, would not call on us

It may be inferred from M. Delcassé's retention of power that France's attitude toward the aggressor across the Rhine will be henceforth firm, dignified and unprovocative. Trouble, if it comes, will be of the Kaiser's making and seeking. Upon him alone will rest the curse of breaking the peace of Europe.

It is the consensus of diplomatic opinion in the present circumstances that he dare not commit such a crime. No man is cleverer, however, in creating such a complicated situation that his motives and responsibilities will be obscured. It cannot be denied that Europe awaits with considerable apprehension to see how far he will go in this direction.

To-day's Cologne Gazette prints a semiofficial despatch from Berlin saying it is impossible for Germany to enter into negotiations with France on the subject of Morocco. The reason for this is Chancellor von Bulow's declaration that if Germany made certain demands she was bound to see them carried through, and this might create embroilments which both France and Germany have every reason to seek to avoid. The only solution of the matter, therefore, the despatch says, is to submit a statement of the matter to the signatory

Powers of the Madrid convention. THE SUN'S Rome correspondent telegraphed this evening that the opinion is expressed in diplomatic quarters that M. Paris, April 22.-There was great excitement in the Chamber of Deputies when it was announced that Foreign Minister Delcassé had withdrawn his resignation

A semi-official note has been issued stating that President Loubet this morning summoned Foreign Minister Delcassé to Premier Rouvier's new Ministry were the Elysée Palace and held with him an alarmed by Germany's threatening attitude interview that lasted half an hour. After discussing the foreign policy of France in its various aspects, the President urged Minister Delcassa to retain his portfolio.

Were Earning Way Through School. George and Thomas Betherton, 13 and 12 years respectively, have been employed for some time as water boys in the New Amsterdam Theater. They are the children of an old theatrical man who has seen better days, and for whose sake the boys were employed by Mr. Erlanger. The father is now without resources and the employment enabled the boys to earn suiticient money to pay their own expenses and attend public school. Both are ambitious and industrious and they were favorites around the theatre. They were not required to attend the Wednesday matinées, as that would have taken them

Mr. Luescher said it might mean that the boys would have to go to work at some regular business as soon as they are past 14 and so be forced to give up the hope of an education that they have been working for.

NEW ARBITRATION DEAL MADE

PERMANENT PEACE NOW LOOKED FOR IN BUILDING TRADES.

the Pact-Men Say They Gain by It-Employees on New Board Which Succeeds the Emergency Committee.

For the first time since the arbitration agreement of the Building Trades Employers' Association was adopted over two years ago a guarantee of peace on both sides was reached yesterday. At a meeting in the Building Trades Club a joint arbitration agreement was unanimously adopted by representatives of the Building Trades Employers' Association and of the unions working under the old arbitration agree-

The agreement will go into effect at once. It satisfies both sides and gives neither an advantage. There are to be no more committees composed exclusively of employers. and the unions rank equally in the new agreement with the trade associations of employers as factors in settling labor disputes and deciding how work is to be done.

The new agreement affects nearly 100,-000 mechanics in the building trades employed by about 1,000 contractors and builders belonging to the Building Trades Employers' Association.

Out of thirty-two trade associations of mployers, thirty-one were represented yesterday by three delegates each, as were thirty-two unions. Otto M. Eidlitz of the Mason Builders' Association presided, and James Hatch of the Upholsterers' Union was vice chairman. All the trades working under the arbitration agreement except four came with power to act. These four trades were the bricklayers, stone cutters. cement masons and tile layers. In three of the trades their unions had not time to call a meeting to instruct their delegates, and in the other notice of the convention had not been received in time. The four unions will probably join the others soon.

When the conference was over repreentatives of both sides said they were perfectly satisfied and felt relieved that the building industry this year was not menaced by a general strike or lockout. It was admitted also that everybody has had enough fighting.

The new agreement is looked upon by the unions as a victory for them. The emergency committee, which was a sort of court of last resort, composed altogether of employers, is to be replaced by an executive committee, composed of employers and employees selected by the general arbitration board.

The unions and the employers are to defray jointly the expenses of keeping up the general arbitration board and its headquarters will not be in the Building Trades Club as at present, but in some neutral building.

The agreement has many new sections. Those relating to the general arbitration board are as follows:

There shall be a general arbitration board consisting of two representatives from each employers' association affiliated with the ilding Trades Employers' Association and two representatives from each union recognized as a party to this plan.

The general arbitration board shall exercise the powers delegated to it by the several provisions of this plan; they shall determine the manner of adjustment of any dispute which is not specifically covered by this plan; shall shall determine the manner in which and by whom the expenses of special arbitration boards shall be paid.

The following provision covers the question of strikes and lockouts:

The unions as a whose, or as a single union, shall not order any strike against a mem-ber of the Building Trades Employers' Associstion, nor shall any number of union men leave the works of a member of the Building Trades Employers' Association, nor shall any member of the Building Trades Emoyers' Association lock out his employees.

There was a good deal of vagueness in the old arbitration agreement regarding the employment of union men exclusively This point is cleared up by the following provision in the new agreement:

The employers parties to this arbitration plan agree to employ members of the trade unions only, directly or indirectly, through and within the territory described in Section 1

The territory described in section 1 comp ises greater New York. The new union of carpenters voted with alacrity for the adoption of the agreement. A settlement with the Brotherhood which will end the carpenters' lockout will be made this week. PRESIDENTIAL CAMP MOVES.

Mountaineers Enforce Respect for Roosevelt's Wish to Be Alone With Hunters. GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Col., April 22 .- The report from New Castle is that President Roosevelt and his companion hunters are very busy to-day moving their camp. They left the East D.vide this morning and are now encamped on West Divide Creek, about twenty miles from New Castle. The new location is closer and more accessito the town. President Roosevelt's wish that he and his friends should be left to themselves during their sojourn in the mountains is being respected by the people this section,

There is naturally a desire on the part of natives and tourists to size up the Presidential camp, but the natives feel that they are on their honor and any tourist who happens to let his curiosity get the better of his judgment is held at bay. He is told that there is plenty of room for everybody in the mountains, but that for the present he m st keep out of the divide southwest of New Castle.

EGGERS STARTS EXCISE RAIDS.

His 24 Sleuths Scatter Over the City After Powwow of More Than an Hour.

Acting Captain Eggers called his entire staff of twenty-four sleuths to Police Headquarters last night at 8 o'clock and remained in conference with them until 10:20, when the men left, scattering in various directions Eggers denied that there was anything special doing. I've merely instructed them to keep a lookout for violations of the law," was all he would say. The only visible result of the activity down to a late hour was the arrest at 12 o'clock of the alleged proprietor and a waiter at a place known as the Chimney Corner at 414 Sixth avenue, on charges of violating the excise law. The sleut hs marched Henry Jackson of 404 Eighth avenue, the alleged proprietor, and Michael Steede of 309 West Twenty-ninth street the waiter, to the Tenderloin station. They also carried with them two glasses of been and an empty Lottle as evidence. The presence of Robert Pinkerton of the Pinkerton Detective Agency in the Tenderloin station house caused some of the sleuths to wonder what was up. Capt. Cottrell of the Tenderloin seemed much put out at the invasion of the Eggers men and after a visit to the station house by Inspectors Brooks and McLaughlin he ordered his men to circulate through the precinct and see that the excise law was being obeyed.

Sleuths belonging to Eggers's staff :19 made two more excise arrests between 17:30 and 1:30 at 52 West Nineteenth street

MONKEY A DIAMOND THIEF. Circus Animal Grabs Mrs. Barton's $300 Pin and Swallows It.

China, one of the largest monkeys in the Barnum and Bailey Circus, was the envy of his fellows and the despair of the management last night. Incidentally the monk made Mrs. John D. Barton, of 169 North Fulton avenue, Mount Vernon, very unhappy and convinced her that monks are not only amusing but thieving cusses.

Mrs. Barton went to the circus last night with a party of friends. Before the show began they looked over the menagerie in the basement of the Garden. Because last night was moving night for the circus many of the guard rails in front of the animals cages had been removed.

The guard rail in front of the monkey cage had been taken down and Mrs. Barton got within reach of China's long paw. He reached quickly for the bright shiny thing at her throat and he got it. He put it in his mouth in the presence of its owner and that was the last she saw of it. The bright shiny thing happened to be a $300 diamond pin, Mrs. Barton declared. The monkey had swallowed her jewel before she called the attention of her friends to what had happened. When China didn't cough up the jewel Mrs. Barton complained to the management.

The keeper of the monkeys was called and shook Chins to see if any trace of the pin could be found in his inwards. China made serious and strenuous objection to this treatment and the monkey man retired in confusion. Mrs. Barton had the sympathy of the circus management over her loss, but it was her pin she wanted and not sympathy.

STOLEN HORSE RUNS DOWN GIRL.

She May Die-Boys Jump From Wagon and Get Off-Innocent Driver Locked Up. Mrs. Margaret Dowdell of 653 Second avenue sent her four-year-old daughter Margaret to a florist's shop at Thirtyseventh street and Second avenue yesterday afternoon for a cluster of Easter lilies As the child was crossing the street with the pot of flowers clasped in her arms, a horse drawing a delivery wagon of H Mo quin & Co. of 21 Ann street knocked her down and ran over her.

The horse stopped at once, and before a policeman arrived two boys, apparently about 14 years old, jumped off the seat and ran away. Policeman Reed of the East Thirty-fifth street station sent the child to Bellevue Hospital in an ambulance. The surgeons found that she had internal injuries which will probably cause her death. Reed took the wagon to the station house and sent out a general alarm for the two boys. An hour later Felix Gofang of 88 Macdougal street went to the station house in search of the rig. He said he left the horse standing in front of 667 Madison avenue while he went inside to deliver some groceries. When he returned and found the horse gone, he traced it to Thirty-seventh street and Second avenue and then to the station house. Gofang was locked up for letting the wagon be stolen from him.

Hoffman Boulevard used a great deal by automobilists in traveling on Long Island, and it was such a fine day that there were a great many machines going in each direction. Annie Moller in playing the game of tag dodged back of one machine and stepped out in front of the one Wilder was driving.

This car was going at good speed and the Wilder and his companions saw the child, but Wilder could not stop the car quick enough to avoid running her down. He stopped as soon as e could, and he and his companions ran back and picked the child up. She was badly crushed, but still alive.

The young men got the name of the nearest physician and with the injured child in the automobile they started at full speed to Elmhurst to the home of Dr. Franklin H. Booth.

Dr. Booth was at home. He saw at a glance that there was little chance of the child living. He advised that she be hurried to a hospital at once. He volunteered to go along and do what he could on the way.

The girl was taken back into the autonobile, which started for the Flushing Hospital, a couple of miles away. Dr. Booth did all he could, but before the automobile reached Flushing the child was

BOY RUN DOWN BY AUTO. awyer L. A. Baldwin and His Wife in the Machine.

Frank Molese, 6 years old, of 123 Bordon avenue, Long Isani City, was run down by an automobile jesterday afteron Borden avenue and his right thigh was broken. An automobile occupied by L. A. Baldwin, a lawyer, of 8 East Seventieth street, Manhattan; his wife and another woman and Myron Fleming, chauffeur, of 247 West Fiftieth street, Manhattan, was coming up Borden avenue, having come from the ferry, the party being on their way to the Aqueduct racetrack, when at Vernon avenue the boy ran out into the street directly in the path of the machine.

The chauffeur promptly applied his brake, but one of the front wheels passed over the boy before the auto could be stopped. The two women screamed as the machine hit the child. The little boy was carefully taken from under the machine and carried to a drug store on Jackson avenue, while a telephone message was sent to St. John's Hospital for an ambulance. Magistrate Smith had been attracted by the crowd that gathered, and when he learned what had happened he, too, went to the drug store to make inquiries. On hearing the statements of the occupants of the auto and other persons who witnessed the accident the Magistrate paroled Mr. Baldwin and the chauffeur to appear in the Fifth street police court next Monday morning. The auto party then reentered the machine and resumed their trip.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN LONDON, April 22 .- If the natives of India vere puzzled in the recent great durbar to see the King's own brother, the Duke of Connaught, yielding precedence to Viceroy Curzon, their ideas of what is due to royal blood are likely to be further upset when the Prince of Wales visits India. It is stated that the Prince will never take precedence over Viceroy Curzon He will hold a few durbars, but on these occasions the Viceroy will not be present. Another announcement in connection with the Prince's visit which does not meet with the approval of the native rulers is that Rajahs will not be allowed to make him presents. The reason for this is doubtmobile, which was on its way to the races less the fact that the Rajahs on such occasions compete most jealously as to who shall make the most magnificent gift, for which the poor taxpayers suffer accordingly.
